Development Analyst

The American Journalism Project is seeking a Development Analyst to serve in an essential advancement role at a venture philanthropy dedicated to the growth and sustainability of civic news organizations. The role will support the efforts of our Philanthropy Team to build the American Journalism Project’s visibility, impact, and financial resources. This is an unique opportunity to contribute to the future of local news and support the next generation of civic news leaders.

We believe a trusted source of verified information forms the connective tissue that brings communities together, facilitates collaboration, and is critical for thriving, civically engaged communities. The American Journalism Project aims to catalyze a movement of nonprofit local news enterprises that rallies our country’s next generation of social entrepreneurs, philanthropists, and community leaders around this vital cause. We encourage all people who are excited by the mission and the work, regardless of background, to apply.

WHO YOU ARE

This role is a fit if you are…

- Excellent communicator: You are a strong communicator and writer with a willingness to learn and grow.
- Collaborative and agile: You love people and you are the kind of person that brings energy to a meeting. You are flexible and comfortable working in an environment where multitasking is the norm, the pace is fast, and priorities will evolve.
- Entrepreneurial and effective: We are building a nimble and entrepreneurial organization so we are looking for people who are highly organized, and comfortable and efficient working in a startup environment.
- Committed to equity: We are committed to creating a better, more diverse, and more inclusive news media that advances human and civil rights, and that starts with doing the work ourselves.
- Bold and mission-oriented: You wake up every day terrified about the future of local news in our country but boldly optimistic that we can reimagine our country’s local news infrastructure. You work with urgency to get us there faster.
- Trustworthy: You handle confidential and sensitive information with humility, professionalism, and discretion.
- Detail-oriented: You cross your Ts and dot your Is and you get energy from doing behind-the-scenes work.
- Problem Solving: You love to brainstorm and come up with ideas. You look at the way things are and then imagine 20 ways they can be improved.
- Fun and supportive: We are working hard to reimagine the future of local news and our mission is vitally important to the future of our country. We also love the people we work with and love to laugh.

What background and skills do you have? (We know not all strong candidates will have all the skills we list. That’s OK. What else do you bring to the table? Please tell us!):

- Strong organizational skills and experience managing and tracking multiple prospects and donors
- Knowledge of fundraising principles/practices and ethics
- Proficient with office software, primarily the Google Suite, including strong spreadsheet and presentation (Slides) design skills
- Comfort with Salesforce and comfortable with revenue data and Excel
- Preferred work experience in a fundraising and development environment

Bonus points if you’ve got:

- Curiosity about nonprofit journalism or a connection to our mission
- Experience with Adobe Creative Cloud (Illustrator, InDesign)
